THE POINTS OF DIFFERENCE.

In response to a request from Senator Peffer Senator Allison explained the points of difference between the two houses.

"The other house," said Senator Allison, "insists that the appropriation shall be limited to $75,000, and that it shall be paid from the taxes levied upon the property of the District of Columbia irrespective of the government property. The contention upon the part of the Senate, is that the appropriation should be $100,000, and that it should be taken from the revenues of the District as other appropriations are taken from the provision as it was inserted by the Senate in the bill that this was the concern of the District alone, that the District solicited this meeting, that it held out the idea that it was such an object to the District that it would gladly defray all the expense, and that what-operation, and that insured to the District. If that is all there was to it it is pretty small business. If all there is to this meeting of the Grand Army here on this occasion is the amount of pocket money that will result from it it is pretty small business.

I never myself could see any distinction between this and another enterprise, except on a "The other house," said Senator Allison, "insists that the appropriation shall be limited to $75,000, and that it shall be paid from the taxes levied upon the property of the District of Columbia irrespective of the government property. To be a success an artificial crown must be so constructed that it shall permanently arrest decay at the broken endo; the root and strong enough to prevent splitting of the root or breaking loose from its attachments. We claim that our crowns have all these requirements, and when combined with bridge work, which consists in supplying teeth that have been extracted, makes the most beautiful and durable appliance ever devised as a substitute for the natural teeth; all this without a plate to cover the roof of the mouth. The advancement in dentistry has been great in the last few years. We have kept pace with these improvements and the patients of the Evans Parlors are assured of receiving the benefit of these, practiced and applied in the most skillful and artistic manner. which is very small, because some of them will spend as high as $500, it makes $4,000,000 to be spend as high as $500, it makes $4,000,000 to be spent in the city of Washington that the people of Washington will have the benefit of. I ask, is it not reasonable that this appropriation should come from the funds of the District? I believe, as I stated at the outset, that there are men of common sense among the old soldiers of this country who do not ask that the people of the country who do not ask that the people of the country at large shall be taxed for the benefit of those who happen to live in the city of Washington and the District of Columbia."

MR. ALLISON'S EXPLANATION. Senator Allison was on his feet in an instant 'Mr. President," said he, "I have stated many passed from the Senate it proposes to take this sum, as all other sums for District purposes are taken, from the treasury of the United States and the taxes of the District of Columbia in equal proportions. As far as I am concerned taken, from the treasury of the United States and the taxes of the District of Columbia in equal proportions. As far as I am concerned I can see no distinction between this appropriation and many appropriations that are contained in the District appropriation bill. We have appropriated at this session considerable sums for charity, to the St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, to St. Rose's Industrial School and to various other charities in this District. The Senator from South Dakota seems to think that his constituents and mine are taxed to pay this sum. If we are then I should be glad to know why it is that the people of South Dakota and sum. If we are then I should be glad to know why it is that the people of South Dakota and of Iowa should maintain charitable institutions in this District. Therefore I can see no distinction. But having attained the object I had in view, namely, the judgment of the Senate by a majority upon this question, with the leave of the Senate I will not be used for proper and legitimate purposes. It will be used, as I believe, to enhance the comfort of the old soldiers and make their stay in Washington more agreeable and profitable than of the Senate I will not be used.

of the Senate I will withdraw the resolution that I offered."

Senator Palmer Takes a broad view.

Senator Palmer had something to say and he said it: I would not claim the right, he went on, "to control the action of the Senator from south and an appropriation. Of course I am not urgent in pressing the matter. I understand that this is upon the report of a committee of conference on the disagreeing voices of the two houses in regard to the appropriation for the meeting of the old soldiers in this city in September next. I have felt that it was eminently proper that the Congress of the United States should not by meager, narrow pinching processes, but by a frank and liberal appropriation from the treasury, aid that assemblage.

The Senator from South Dakota made the suggestion that in other places where these encampments have been held the money was voted from the treasuries of the cities. Mr. President, that has not always been the case. There have been instances where these encampments have been held the money was voted from the treasuries of the cities. I feel in my own person, and I can speak, therefore, with more frankness, that the men who will be here in September are vestiges, the mere remains of historical events that interest all sections of the country. They were young men, comparatively, at the time of the late civil war, and I had supposed and now suppose and now say in the presence of gentlemen whom I see and who were engaged on the other side of that great contest that it was a other side of that great contest that it was as a war carried on for great national purposes. On the adoption of the resolution there was a division, but as no quorum voted the yeas and nays were called for.

Before the roll was called Messrs. Peffer and cockrell spoke against the resolution, following the same line of argument as was used in the House. Mr. Cockrell quoted again the letter from Private Dalzell protesting that the money appropriated "goes, as you know, for the ficers, big chipmunks and nonsense of the private of your 5100,000 or of the funds of the Grand Army of the Republic comes back to us."

On the roll call the vote was 25 in the affirmative and 16 in the negative. The total was less than a quorum, so a call of the Senate was ordered.

SENATOR KYLE'S OPPOSITION.

More than a quorum answering a second roll call was ordered, and pending that Senator Kyle arose to explain his vote.

"Why should this amount of $75,000 or $100,000," he said, "be paid strictly from the District funds? It should be paid from tween this and another enterprise, except on a larger scale, which was solicited, I believe, by

SENATOR GALLINGER'S VIEW. Senator Gallinger said he listened with interest to the remarks of Senator Kyle, but he evidently was not converted. Very likely, said Senator Gallinger. if this were an original proposition, so far as the relative amount of the appropriation to come from the funds of the District and from the national treasury is concerned, I might well agree with him. But as the Senator from Iowa (Mr. Allison) has well said, all through our legislation this matter of paying one-half of the expense from the national treasury and one-half from the treasury of the District of Columbia is carried out without an exception, and I confess that I cannot see in this particular case any reason why Congress

They were young men, comparatively, at the time of the late civil war, and I had supposed and now suppose and now say in the presence of gentlemen whom I see and who were engaged on the other side of that great contest that it was a war carried on for great national purposes. I have regarded this struggle of itself as a mere paroxysm in our national growth, and that the parties were involuntarily made factors in that great struggle, and I had supposed that on this cocasion of an assembly more than a quarter of a century after the close of the struggle it was competent and proper and eminently the duty of the national Congress and of the Representatives of these 65,000,000 on this oceanbound republic that they should in this way contribute in some measure to this national assemblage.

Mr. President, of course there are many as-
